

➔ If you're like me you've got shelves groaning with CDs, and love the idea of having the whole messy lot transferred onto digital storage – think of all that freed-up space. The boffins at Move2Digital will collect your CD collection and iPod/storage device and complete what they promise is a high-quality digital transfer, complete with artwork and “metadata” (artist and album information). They'll also give you a back-up on either DVD or small external hard-drive. The company also works with custom installers for the new multi-room home audio systems.

Company founder (and former DJ) Jason Osborne says his team has a strong music-loving ethos, so will take utmost care of your precious collection. The cost is 90p per CD plus shipping charges. Rock'n'roll and a tidier house. Marvellous.
